[Abstract]

An encoding device and encoding method intended to reduce the total processing time are provided. Basic parameters are generated from plural parameters which are set. Motion prediction is made according to the basic parameters. Further, the motion prediction result is converted according to the encoding parameters of each encoder. The conversion results are respectively output to the corresponding encoders.